Did you know your child's teacher fills out developmental checklists on your child 2 times a year? If you have questions about your child's development or about what is developmentally appropriate for their age group, don't hesitate to ask!

Here's just a few things you might see:

4-7 months: sits with support of hands, finds partially hidden objects & waves

1-2 years: builds tower of 4+ blocks, follows 1-step direction, begins to sort shapes, colors & feeds with spoon

2-3 years: pedals tricycle, holds pencil in writing position, recognizes & identifies almost all common objects/pictures

3-4 years: understands same/different, engages in fantasy play, recall part of story & stays on topic during conversation

4-5 years: says name, address, better understanding of time, prints letters, & uses future tense

What is WMELS and why do we use it?

Wisconsin Model Early Learning Standards (WMELS)

These standards have been developed by the Wisconsin state departments of Public Instruction, Children and Families, and Health Services. These standards reflect the shared values and commitments of the citizens of Wisconsin to prepare young children for success in school. The Wisconsin Model Early Learning Standards specify expectations for children birth to first grade. The standards contain developmental domains, sub-domains, developmental expectations, performance standards and program standards.
